Ahead of our evening dinner event with Richard Tice, Mid Bedfordshire Reformers were out in Ampt Hill & Flitwick running street stalls.

Great response received.

HIGH TAX BUDGET LATEST

HIGHEST TAXES FOR 70 YEARS

To pay for Foreign Aid, 10% increase for Universal Credit, Net Zero, Housing Illegal Immigrants, MP's Christmas Parties & Heating Bills.

The Tories produced a budget designed to cripple middle Britain with large tax rises. These increases will push many people who are already struggling into poverty.

There was nothing in the budget to help growth. Has any country ever taxed its way out of recession?

We need growth to fix the economy. Working is less attractive, what's the point of earning when your government takes it from you?

RICHARD TICE VISITS BEDFORDSHIRE

Richard Tice · 12h · 🌐

I enjoyed my time with our amazing candidate for Mid Bedfordshire Dave Holland. Great to see so many enthusiastic Reform supporters who are working tirelessly to get our message out there.

We will be standing in 600 seats at the next general election. Everyone will have a chance to vote for an amazing Reform candidate like Dave.

Reform UK - Mid Bedfordshire · 13h · 🌐

Great evening on Saturday with Richard Tice in Mid Bedfordshire.... many thanks to all 50 of you who attended our first event. Thank you Richard for taking time out to visit us, for sharing your thoughts, ideas and vision for the future as well as for answering all of the questions so comprehensively. drive to carry out the policies that the British public repeatedly vote for: lower taxes, higher growth, secure borders, less government waste, a police force that enforces the law equally without fear or favour. A judiciary that keeps convicted criminals locked up for a period of time commensurate with their offences.

We need a comprehensive energy policy that provides a secure domestic supply while we migrate towards a sustainable renewable supply.

It makes sense to look after our planet responsibly. Once we no longer need to burn fossil fuel we shouldn't do so, but stopping fossil fuels before we have a reliable, affordable alternative is at best naive, at worst negligent.

Our reliance on global supply for critical infrastructure has been shortsighted & leaves us exposed to global instability.

WWII was the first time in.....

WELCOME TO WEFMINSTER

Who is driving the global government unity we have witnessed in recent years?

Who orchestrated the 'Build Back Better' messaging?

Someone, or some organisation has systematically organised the global response to the catastrophic collective global actions that caused the economic crises that we currently face.

Lockdown money printing has caused inflation & net zero has pushed the price rise in gas & fuel.

You can blame Russia, but, if we were self sufficient in gas this would not be an issue ...

history that we found ourselves as a country unable to supply ourselves with essential fuel, food and equipment.

This coincided with the end of empire. Is that another coincidence or the result of not being self sufficient in essential infrastructure?

We have seen our population grow from 55m in the late 1980's to almost 70m today.

We had hosepipe bans in 1976 & yet our government expects 70m of us to be able to manage with a water supply that hasn't been increased since the early 1990's.

We have cut coal, gas and nuclear power supply in a misguided attempt to hit crazy net zero targets without replacing that energy production with a reliable, sustainable alternative.

Wind and solar has a place in energy production but, our energy usage goes up at night just as the sun sets & wind power is variable and inconsistent.

We need a method of storage such as hydro for example where solar is used to pump water up hill during the day and then hydro used at night. A 'battery' if you will.

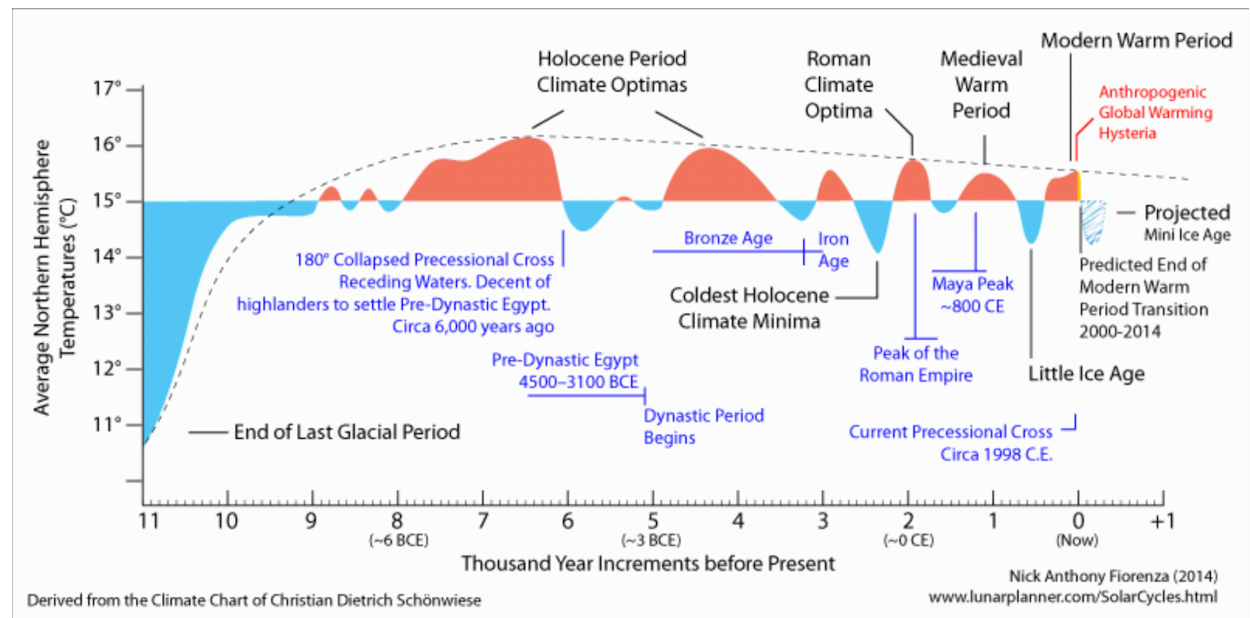

We face power cuts because of net zero and the global obsession with reducing CO2... one of the building blocks of life.

It seems to have been agreed that CO2 is the enemy.

There are thousands of scientists that disagree on this point, but never mind, we have plenty who go along with the narrative, so it must be true.... surely?

Don't question the science, that's not what science is for... apparently.

I have a few questions;

1. If man made CO2 is responsible for climate change, what changed the climate prior to the industrial revolution 300 years ago? (The Medieval & Roman warm periods for example?)
2. How much do we need to reduce man made CO2 in order to stop the climate changing?
3. When the climate continues to change after we have destroyed our livelihoods, our incomes & our food supply, what is the next step?

It is possibly the height of human arrogance to think that we have the capability to control our planets climate. We can't even keep the place clean and keep man made pollutants & plastics out of our food chain.

Maybe it would be more prudent to be more practical and a little less King Canute, accept that the climate is changing, has always done so and will continue to do so and learn to adapt our environment to those changes.

Experts are currently split between the climate experts who believe we are all going to fry to death in a heat wave & other equally valid experts who take the opposing view that we are heading towards an ice age and that cold will be our greatest enemy.

We all know that predictions and forecasts are almost 100% wrong, with very few exceptions. Covid reminded us of the fallibility of 'experts'.

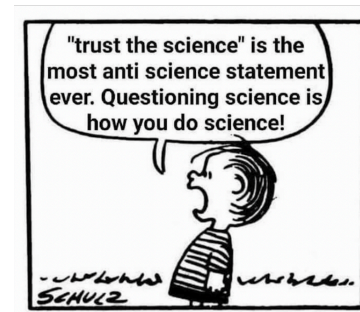

What if climate change was being used as an excuse for control and that carbon is a taxable commodity, essential to establish that control.

The beauty of this governmental money grab is that we will all be dead of old age long before the evidence against their policy manifests itself.

Carbon credit trading will become an industry in itself, further magnifying the gap between the haves and the have nots.

In the future you will only be able to travel, fly and burn carbon if you can afford to do so.

The poor will sell their carbon allowance to the wealthy.

HIGHEST TAXES FOR 70 YEARS

transition towards sustainable energy that works, without massive subsidies and power cuts.

The only, light in the budget that wasn't a budget was the restoration of the triple lock for pensions. Of course it doesn't get close to making up for the few years of freezes that came before it, but it is a token gesture towards keeping a few more people warm and alive this winter.

The rest of the 'Autumn Statement' definitely not a budget, was daylight theft of middle Britain's pockets to fund everything except for them.

Tax limits were frozen meaning that thousands more people will be drawn into higher tax brackets.

The 23% fuel duty rise next April was left unchanged meaning that including VAT we will see an increase of around 16 pence per litre. This will increase transport costs and thus the cost of products, supplies and materials, further increasing inflation.

You have to wonder if the government want to reduce inflation? It doesn't look like they do.

Their cost of living solution is to provide more handouts in the form of the energy price cap.

What government would mismanage energy policy so comprehensively that they would then need to hand out billions of pounds so that people could survive?

It further fuels the argument that our leaders are driving us towards UBI (Universal Basic Income).

We used to live in a world where work was rewarded and essential services were managed with sufficient competence that we could afford to buy them.

We have moved on from those heady days.

No longer can we rely upon a Tory government to look after our best interests.

Our best interests are not being served. I am not certain who's interests are being satisfied apart from globalists, big business & a certain teutonic megalomaniac who wrote the playbook that we appear to be unwittingly following verbatim.

Where do we go from here? Just how bad is this winter going to be? We have many different unions calling strikes left, right & centre.

What is the difference between the Tories and Labour on tax? It is beginning to look like the Tories are the new party of economic incompetence.

It really does come to something when you are so bad at running the economy that you make the Labour party look competent.

We face power cuts due to Net Zero lunacy. Putin invaded Crimea in 2014, so we have been more than well aware of his intentions for 8 years or more.

To rely upon Russia for energy since that time has been one of the greatest political failures in recent times.

Without energy security our economy is doomed to failure. Our leaders

We have university lecturers on strike. Who is going to brainwash the next generation about slavery, white privilege, gender dysphoria, climate change and the end of the world?

When will tax payers see anything for their money? When will we be able to drive to work without dodging pot holes? When will we get a police officer visit after a theft? When will we get to see a GP while we are ill?

It seems as if everyone is ahead of us in the queue for our money.

We are being charged ever greater amounts of tax but we receive less and less every year.

Government waste is out of control. Government can't even be bothered to try to recover the billions in furlough fraud, bounce back loan fraud, PPE waste, the list goes on and on.

We deserve our money to be spent more wisely.

Maybe the people who received furlough should be the ones to pay it back?

Welcome To WEFminster

WEFMINSTER

Is it healthy for government leaders to be members of a global think tank?

When does a conspiracy theory become a fact? When does that moment occur when the unthinkable becomes an undeniable fact?

Here are some facts:

1. Many politicians including Sunak & Johnson are members of the World Economic Forum (WEF).
2. Globally, Macron, Trudeau, Merkel, Arden, Biden, etc. are all members.
3. Just days after Covid struck, we saw governments across the world all using 'Build Back Better' messaging. As if it was all being orchestrated.
4. Klaus Schwab, the founder of the WEF has written a book called 'The Great Reset' which explains his vision for our dystopian future.
5. This future includes; Digital ID, Digital Currency & Social Credit Scoring, Universal Basic Income, population reduction, and much more.

The contents of Uncle Klaus's book may well be little more than a crazy old man's ramblings, but it is a little concerning that little by little, inch by inch, much of it is being considered and implemented as part of our future, without anyone ever voting on it, let alone voting for it.

Covid19 was apparently a unique opportunity to introduce what the WEF call "The great Reset".

We will, according to the book "Own Nothing & Be Happy". Personally, if you take away everything I have worked and strived for I will be far from happy.

Is the great reset the direction that we want to travel in?

Do you want to have a social credit score that monitors and punishes you for living your life?

Do you want to eat bugs instead of meat?

Do you want to be controlled or do you want to live as a free person?

I favour freedom, freedom to think what I want, to say what I want, to go where I want. We may well be sleepwalking into a dystopian future of ultimate control.

The primary reason why the majority voted for Brexit was because we wanted to be a self determining future as a sovereign country.

We wanted to have a government that was elected by us to work for us to deliver what we wanted.

No sooner have we thrown off the shackles of the unelected EU and we seem to be being controlled by a swathe of globalist businessmen hellbent of shaping our future.

I am skeptical as to why Bill Gates has donated so much money to media broadcasters across the world.

I am skeptical why he has bought up over 250,000 acres of farmland in the US.

I am skeptical as to why a computer salesman is hellbent of selling vaccines across the world.

This might all be harmless philanthropy, but it doesn't look like it.

More often than not, if it looks like a duck, walks like a duck and quacks like a duck then you can be reasonably confident that it is in fact a duck.

So where do we go from here? How do we stop the WEF? How do we fight back against what is being done to us?

A man cannot server two masters. All the more important when it comes to politicians. We need to know that our politicians work for us, not for a global pressure group think tank.

If our leaders want to work collectively for the global good, why don't they do that under the existing umbrella of the G7, G20 or even a new G215 featuring the leaders of every country on earth.

If we do indeed need a global response from our leaders why isn't it structured as a global government? Why do some of our leaders meet instead behind closed doors with many of the wealthiest and influential businessmen on earth at Davos?

If it feels wrong, it usually is.

Our MP's work for us, they need to remember that and stop listening to globalist business owners who's interests are not aligned with ours.
